

Annual Report 2012-2013

Our Mission

The American River Natural History Association and the Effie Yeaw Nature Center are dedicated to bringing awareness of the beauty and diversity of the natural world to children, families, and the community through education initiatives that foster appreciation, enjoyment and stewardship of the unique natural and cultural resources of the Sacramento region.

Students making discoveries during a nature hike at Effie Yeaw Nature Center

From the ARNHA President

As the region's premier natural science education organization, ARNHA had its best year from fiscal and program participation standpoints, since assuming fiscal and operational responsibility for the Effie Yeaw Nature Center in 2010!

In the back office successful fund development strategies were planned and implemented, additional governance policies were adopted, additional operational infrastructure was put in place, and new fiscal management tools were implemented to better track resource allocation and provide timely financial reporting. The number of Board working committees was increased to eight to better address governance and operations of the EYNC. Endowment funds were moved to the Sacramento Region Community Foundation for ongoing fund management.

In addition to the many elementary school children who participate in our programs, Los Rios Community College students continued to rely on ARNHA's Outdoor World as a staple to their introduction to the flora and fauna of the Lower American River. After a brief absence, ARNHA participated in Nature Bowl, setting the stage for a return of the EYNC as a semi-final Nature Bowl sponsor site in FY 13-14.

ARNHA's presence in the community increased as Board, staff, and volunteers represented ARNHA and the EYNC at chambers of commerce, community organizations, and community events that share our commitment to environmental stewardship and natural science education and worked collaboratively with like-minded non-profits in the Sacramento region. The Sacramento Environmental Commission recognized our annual Nature Fest for its successful environmental education to community members of all ages.

ARNHA is fortunate to attract skilled Board, Associate Board, staff and volunteers who are passionate about educating all age groups in the community about science, natural history, and cultural history of Native Americans of the Lower American River and about environmental stewardship in general. We are equally fortunate to have the generous support of ARNHA membership and community businesses, foundations and private donors who share our passion.

As ARNHA turns to the next fiscal year, join us as we share science education and enrichment with additional schoolchildren, families, and adults in the natural setting of the American River Parkway and through our publications, including the updated Outdoor World.

Regards,

Diana Parker
President

From the Executive Director

This past year was a very successful year for the Effie Yeaw Nature Center (EYNC) and the American River Natural History Association (ARNHA). We increased in every category – more visitors, more classes, more money raised, more members and, we believe, more enjoyable experiences had by all.

As I sit writing this, a doe and fawn wander by my window and then stand cautiously while visitors pass on the trail less than 15 feet away. That is the essence of EYNC – a place where people and nature connect and both feel safe. The nature center, its grounds, and the adjacent nature study area are heavily visited (an estimated 100,000 people per year) yet solitude can be easily found and the natural world is available for enjoyment or investigation by all who seek it.

As ARNHA transitions into our fully functioning non-profit support structure, the Nature Center's program focus is expanding outward to a broader audience based on ARNHA's mission. Our elementary school programs continue to be our base and their popularity is strong and getting stronger. The number of programs delivered this year increased by more than 10% over the previous two years. Our Urban Nature Program also expanded, increasing the participation of Title 1 school-children in our science programs. The Center's Holiday and Summer Nature Camps continue to attract large groups of school-aged children interested in science even when away from school. Programs offered every weekend day focus on topics emphasizing nature appreciation and environmental stewardship geared towards families with younger children and the attendance at many is three times past averages. The Center continued to deliver adult nature enrichment programs and supports the work of CSUS students conducting monitoring and research of turkeys, deer, and rattlesnakes in the nature study area.

Throughout the last year our staffing has remained consistent and for this year we came in under budget in this critical category. Our senior staff remains stable with highly experienced individuals in our Development Director, Volunteer Coordinator, Office Manager, and Executive Director positions. One of our most experienced employees now manages our interpretive signage and displays.

Our focus for the next year and beyond is to increase our science-based learning opportunities for audiences of all ages and levels beyond the Nature Center and the American River Parkway while ensuring that the Nature Center continues to be our inviting, educational and successful base.

Paul Tebbel
Executive Director

“The information presented was perfect for my class of 31 first graders. Your presentation couldn’t have supplemented our... science program any better. You have a great way with children.”

Educational and Weekend Programs

During 2012-2013, we presented 5.9% more programs than in the prior year and served over 18,000 students, families and visitors. In addition to the educational and weekend programs, Effie Yeaw Nature Center serves many more people through its special events, Assembly Building rental, and other services. The Nature Center continues to be a source of stimulating and memorable education on the natural world, and a resource to our community.

The Big Howl

This year was my first time designing and teaching the Nature Center's summer camps. I would have to say those four weeks were my favorite of the year.

One of my most memorable times was at the end of a Nature Detectives camp which was designed to help the children sharpen their observation skills and learn how to track some of our local wildlife. At the end of the camp was the ultimate test--we were to track a coyote! We found clues left by "coyote" on the trails, in reality clues set out by me. The clues included scat, tracks and remains of a rabbit kill. Following all these clues led us back to the Nature Center.

The children figured out we had found all these clues but we still hadn't heard the coyote [part of using all one's senses to discover clues in the environment]. We decided to call for coyote, so we all got together and gave a big howl! Docent Nancy, who was hidden near the building, called back. They were so excited! We decided to call again, and again a call was returned! We hurried to the building where the call came from and Nancy appeared, directing us to where "coyote" was, inside the building!

As we approached the doorway all the little faces looked eager but afraid, as if we were about to discover a real coyote. We crept into the room and there on the table was an angry, snarling coyote... mount [taxidermied]! The kids finally realized what had happened and approached the mount with excitement.

That was my favorite memory until, now three months later, one little girl from my summer camps recognized me while out at dinner. She came up to me and told me about how all the things she made at camp are hanging on her walls and her mom said she's still talking about how much fun she had. Moments like those make me love my job!

Media and Publications

The Acorn

The Acorn, our quarterly newsletter edited by Peggy Kennedy and Peter Hayes, continues to inform ARNHA members and other Parkway stakeholders about the natural and cultural features of the Parkway, both electronically and in print. In addition, it reflects ARNHA's new mission – funding and management of the Effie Yeaw Nature Center. Articles and illustrations about the art gala fundraiser, the annual meeting, Bird and Breakfast, the passing of the former Acorn editor Ed Littrell, and grant awards shared 2012-13 pages with articles and illustrations about parkway flora and fauna, volunteer work parties, EYNC exhibits and educational programs, docent training, students workshops, Nature Fest. New members and donors were honored in each issue, and each issue featured an excerpt from An American River Journal.

EYNC staff Shawna Protze, Hannah Barnes, and Brena Seck and ARNHA Publications Committee members Peter Hayes and Margaret Leavitt wrote articles. President Diana Parker wrote a monthly column. Local experts William Avery, Bill Dillinger, Tim Manolis, and Michael Plotkin wrote lead stories. Dan Lombard created layouts for articles and illustrations. Molly Keller served as artist. Kari Bauer donated her skill as a photographer. All committee members helped proof each issue. Claudia Hulbe's labeling crew, including Marjorie Boulton, Ida Curtis, Peter Hayes, JoLynn Jarrett, Janice Speth, John Speth, and Sally Weinland, readied copies for mailing to members.

ARNHA Books

The new edition of the Outdoor World of the Sacramento Region are for sale at the Discovery Shop. The new edition details 600 species that live in our region. About 250 illustrations are beautifully hand-colored by Molly Keller. The stunning new 4th edition of Biking and Hiking the American River Parkway is selling in prominent local bike shops and bookstores, in the EYNC Discovery Shop, and online at arnha.org.

Newly printed copies of Ootj, Child of the Nisenan are now for sale at the Discovery Shop, online at ARNHA.org, and in local bookstores. Dan Lombard created the electronic file, and Peter Hayes and Peggy Kennedy edited the new reprint. Peter Hayes is marketing chair. Cindy Dunning keeps inventory records.

Web Pages and Social Media

Liz Williamson serves as web master for ARNHA.org and sacnaturecenter.org. Pete the Parkway Coyote continues his FaceBook page as written by Kari Bauer.

Our Volunteers

This last fiscal year, over 230 volunteers kept the Nature Center open by greeting visitors, leading tours, caring for our resident wildlife, through daily maintenance and landscaping, doing clerical work, leading school tours, and helping with Nature Camps, assisting with fundraising, planning and hosting special events, including our annual Gala and Nature Fest, writing and publishing books, and other activities to support our educational programs.

Total volunteer hours topped 17,755! Last year the total was 15,247 hours. According to the Independent Sector (hrs x $24.18), the monetary value of these hours adds up to $412,365!

Some of our volunteers have just started this year and have already contributed significantly to the well-being and success of the Effie Yeaw Nature Center. Other volunteers have been here longer and given anywhere from 100 to over 9,000 hours for the Effie Yeaw Nature Center and ARNHA; their names are listed below:

Tales from the Trail

Today I had the pleasure of leading a great group of 1st graders out on the trail. It began with them spotting deer hiding in the grass (well-before their naturalist saw them!) and then delighting in sinking down low to watch the deer for a while.

A few moments later the kids tiptoed down 100 feet of trail, totally silent, with their eyes and ears on alert as we played "fox feet." (Wow, totally silent 1st graders?!). Some were sure they spotted both predators and prey. And lastly, while down at the river, they took great pleasure in learning a new big word—one to challenge their family and friends—"anadromous."

They had quite a great time quizzing their other classmates when we returned from our hike. Every one of those kids knows that word now and exactly what it means—and why it relates to our salmon. What a fun hike! I'd take those kids out any day!
